Theory and Procedure for Determining Loads and Motions in Chine-immersed Hydrodynamic Impacts of Prismatic Bodies - Emanuel Schnitzer 1952

A theoretical method is derived for computing the motions and hydrodynamic loads during water landings of prismatic bodies involving appreciable immersion of the chines. A simplified method of computation covering flat-plate and V-bottom bodies with beam-loading coefficients greater than unity is given as a separate section. Comparisons of theory with experiment are presented as plots of impact lift coefficient and maximum draft-beam ratio against flight-path angle and as time histories of loads and motions. Fair agreement is found to exist for chine-immersed landings for angles of dead rise of 0 degrees and 30 degrees, beam-loading coefficients from 1 to 36.5, flight-path angles from 2 to 90 degrees, and trims from 6 to 45 degrees.

Lettres de Chine - Victor Segalen 1993

Ces Lettres de Chine retracent les étapes journalières de cette double exploration que Segalen accomplit, de 1909 à 1910, au coeur du plus vieil empire : celle d'un esprit parti à la découverte de lui-même et celle d'un Européen cherchant à se saisir, en profondeur, de la réalité et de la vie même de l'ancien monde chinois. Servi par sa connaissance de la langue, par son don d'observateur, Segalen (1878-1919), tout au long de ces dix mois qu'il vit sur les chemins de l'antique Chine paysanne, fait une ample moisson d'images vivantes, qui ont le caractère d'évidence de l'instantané photographique. On pourra donc lire cette correspondance comme on lirait un journal de voyage.

Blanc de Chine - Ton Becker 2019

This book contains the private collection of Blanc de Chine, monochrome porcelain from Dehua, collected by Ton and Mies Becker, both retired medical specialists and collectors of Asian Art. For many centuries the Chinese and Western elite adored the monochrome white porcelain wares made in Dehua, a district in the province of Fujian, bordering the south-easterly coast of China. The appeal being based on the combination of beautiful crafting and an aesthetic creamy glaze. It is this appeal which the authors experienced as an irresistible charm and the urge to start collecting this particular porcelain. A number of short essays has been included, not intended as an all-embracing academic account, but rather as introductory notes for those who develop an interest in collecting Blanc de Chine porcelain. These include considerations about the 'whiteness' of Blanc de Chine, the manufacture and main design categories of Blanc de Chine and the export to Europe. The catalogue of the collection is organised according to the main design categories and consists of photographs of each object, highlighting details if desired, a brief description of each item and explanatory notes to provide information about particular items that may need additional clarification, as well as the date of acquisition and provenance.

Indo-Chine - Touring-Club de France 1912

The Chine - Mimi Khalvati 2002

In Mimi Khalvati's most autobiographical book to date, she explores rhythm and metre more formally than previously and discusses her childhood, her children and love.

Blanc de Chine - John Ayers 2013-01-11

Dehua porcelain, or Blanc de Chine as it is known in the West, is pure ivory-white porcelain made at the Dehua kilns in the southern Chinese province of Fujian. It rose to international significance in the 17th century and inspired aristocratic patronage in the development of European porcelain. Its popularity at home and abroad continued and the kilns at Dehua remain prolific to this day. This is the first comprehensive publication since P. J. Doherty's pioneering study thirty years ago. An international group of specialists discuss how, why and when the Dehua porcelain phenomenon occurred. The book also contains a catalogue of the important Hickley Collection in Singapore. Each piece is illustrated in beautiful full colour photography.

Les Chemins de Fer de Chine (Classic Reprint) - Édouard de Laboulaye 2017-10-23

des emprunts de chemins de fer conclus par la Chine depuis 1896. Ces contrats, qui donnent d'abord les droits les plus larges aux étrangers, rognent peu à peu, jusqu'à amener la réaction que nous venons de dire, la liberté d'action, le contrôle, les garanties, les bénéfices industriels et même financiers des prêteurs. Aussi le livre de M. De Laboulaye se recommande-t-il non seulement aux hommes qui veulent lentement comprendre comment les questions d'extrême-orient ont évolué depuis quinze années mais encore aux gens d'affaires. Les conditions de chacun des emprunts cotés sur les bourses occidentales, le taux de leur émission, de leur intérêt, les dates d'amortissement, etc., etc., et d'autre part la situation, la longueur, le coût d'établissement et le rendement des divers chemins de fer chinois sont exposés dans une série de petites monographies qui remplissent toute la seconde partie de cet ouvrage. Celui-ci donne en outre un tableau récapitulatif de tous ces emprunts et un tableau des dettes de la Chine envers chacune des nations occidentales, en ce qui concerne ses chemins de fer. Echoes from the Alum Chine - Cynthia Strauff 2017-04-07

On March 7, 1913, the steamer Alum Chine explodes in the Baltimore harbor. Charles Sherwood, the founder of the company that insures the steamer, is among the first to hear the blast. As he struggles to keep calm, Charles suspects that if it is the Alum Chine that has been decimated, he is now in the midst of a nightmare. While he attempts to cope with the consequences that include his son's diffidence to the calamity, the disaster touches two other families. Helen Aylesforth is the imperious matriarch of her family whose stern demeanor belies her love for those around her, including her daughter, Cantata, who is married to Nicholas Sherwood. The Corporals have served the Aylesforths for generations. Among their six-member family is Lillian Gish, Helen's shy, forgotten, and observant granddaughter who must somehow find her place in the world, despite the chaos around her.
